Warriors' Path State Park was named for the trading path used by the Cherokee. Since that time, the park has known a long history of travelers and is still a pathway for modern-day outdoor enthusiasts.

The 950-acre park is situated on the shores of TVA's Patrick Henry Reservoir on the Holston River. The park is an excellent place to enjoy time in the great outdoors with opportunities ranging from mountain biking to water-skiing. The disc golf course is considered one of the best in the state.

Warriors' Path offers a wide range of interpretive programs from hikes and creek walks to Junior Ranger programs, and many environmental education opportunities at area schools. Because of the popularity of these programs, it is suggested that groups arrange for programs a year in advance.

From Interstate 81, take exit 59. Travel north on Route 36 and turn right on Hemlock Road and continue to the park entrance.

Access Fees may apply. Call park for details.
